A novel aspect of leukocyte-platelet interactions. Accumulating evidence suggests that multiple pathways are involved in the integrindependent adhesion of leukocytes to endothelial cells during the transition to the inflammatory state. Although the selectin-dependent pathway has been intensively studied over the last few years, less is known about the second, non-selectin-dependent pathway involving fibronectin and the vitronectin receptor. Recently, novel inhibitors, monoclonal antibodies, and recombinant receptor constructs were utilized to show the involvement of this pathway in a variety of biological processes. In this study, we will briefly review progress made in the last few years in the study of fibronectin-dependent leukocyte-platelet interactions and then examine some of the mechanisms by which leukocytes may mediate platelet activation. Covert Cabrini sold for $4,700 in a broadcast at the Queens, New York auction house. A portion of the proceeds will benefit Bethune-Cookman College, whose president Charles H. Hooks is best known for organizing the March on Washington in 1963. The tune, from a 1961 album by the Howard University Glee Club, is known for its spirited chorus. The hymn was composed in 1894 by Charlotte Scott Nesbitt
